

Packing

Mimi Lombardo
Fashion Director

T+L PLANS

Q: For our honeymoon, we're spending 14 days in various climates, from resorts in Tahiti to the lodges of New Zealand. What's a card-carrying overpacker to do?

—ARIANA MELLOW, NEW YORK, N.Y.

Have a packing dilemma? Share your story at tripdoctor@aexp.com.

A: The key is to bring clothing that is dual-purpose. My motto: "Accessories are your friend, and shoes your enemy." So limit footwear and take jewelry, scarves, and belts instead. They're typically compact and can transform your wardrobe. Below, nine easy new essentials for your trip.

Tahiti

MIDI DRESS

Wear it for a night out or throw it over your swimsuit as a breezy cover-up (Guess, $108).

TWO-TONE BIKINI

The double-sided top flips from blue to canary yellow (Guria Beachwear, top $78; bottom $73).

WIDE-BRIM HAT

Sun resistant and rollable (Wallaroo Hat Company, $38).

Double Duty

FOLD-FLAT BAG

Made with crushable raffia, it's as chic shopping as it is on the beach (Anya Hindmarch, $595).

STATEMENT NECKLACE

Instantly glamorize almost any outfit (Send the Trend, $30).

SILK SHIFT

Add polish with a belt or wear it loose and casual (Vince, $395).

New Zealand

REVERSIBLE JEANS

Indigo on one side, wax-coated black on the other (Bleulab, $224).

KNIT BLAZER

For the pulled-together look, in cozy merino (Rag & Bone, $495).

BREATHABLE SNEAKERS

Barefoot-style comfort, thanks to a lightweight foam sole (Nike, $95).

TERU ONISHI (8); STYLIST: JILL EDWARDS. BLAZER: MALLEY PRIEBE. ILLUSTRATION BY JOCELYN GRAVOT